Pictures pouring in at Lake County Journals

Words sure do make a newspaper great.

But an equally important part of the newspaper is its pictures.

In recent weeks, the Lake County Journals has received a slew of photos from its readers.

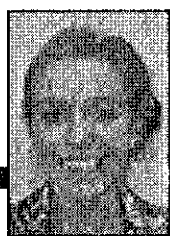

We have gotten pictures of area residents dressing up for Halloween.

We have gotten photos of a local church group participating in a community-service project.

And we have gotten pictures of a motorcycle organization cruising the streets of Antioch.

The pictures are slices of life.

And when we have the space, we like to publish them in the paper.

Those who would like to submit a photo to the Journals should include several bits of information.

Be sure to include the first and last names of those in the picture - It's nice to know who you're looking at.

And on that note, we also like to know the locations of those who appear in submitted pictures.

Is John Doe standing in the first or second row on the choir riser?

Every little bit of information helps.

When possible, those who are submitting pictures also should include the ages of children who appear in photos. In addition, they should include the village or city where a pictured person lives and the date that the picture was taken.

We want to provide readers with as much information as we can.

Within reason.

E-mail photos to me at kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com.

Correction: On page 2B of the Lake County Journals published Oct. 16, the article "Sharefest, a ministry with many parts" incorrectly listed the name of a church in Wauconda. The church is the Evangelical Free Church of Wauconda. The Journals regret the error.

State's attorney race on ballot

By STEPHANIE N. LEHMAN
slehman@nwnewsgroup.com

For candidate bios and additional election information, visit www.LakeCountyJournals.com.

The duty of prosecuting all criminal trials in Lake County will be the job of either 47-year-old Democratic candidate Michael D. Jacobs or 60-year-old Republican incumbent Michael J. Waller after the Nov. 4 election for state's attorney.

Jacobs has spent the past 22 years as an attorney for the Cook County State's Attorney's office, and said transferring that experience to the Lake County office would not be hard.

One of his first actions, if elected, would be to train assistant state's attorneys as sex crime and elder-abuse specialists to specifically handle those cases. He said too many cases end up in plea bargains that give criminals less time in prison.

"Specifically, my concern is that we are pleading a lot of these cases away," Jacobs said. "If you don't have people who are specialized - who can gain people's trust [to testify] - you're going to be forever dropping the charges down to lesser just to get a conviction."

He also would create a gang-crime task force similar to what is being used in Cook County to address gang crime, which has become a growing problem for Lake County, he said.

Another issue Jacobs said he would tackle is the current handling of county child support enforcement.

"The office has taken more of an adversarial position toward the collection of child support," he said. "If you look closely at the [Illinois] child support statute, the goal should be to work closely with both parents to see what is a fair amount and what is a collectible amount for both parents. You stand a better chance of collecting that amount, and less likelihood of deadbeat parents."

Waller, meanwhile, pointed to his 18 years as Lake County's state's attorney - including his staff of 135 individuals and a $14.5 million budget - and said he is running on his record.

"If you've had an excellent record, your first goal is to maintain that record," Waller said. "We handle at least a dozen murder cases a year, hundreds of sexual assault cases; you want to make sure you deal with those cases so criminals are brought to justice."

He said plea bargaining must be done for the sheer volume of cases that comes through his office daily.

"The way that criminal cases are handled, in a lot of them, they wind up with plea agreements, but they're appropriate resolutions to the cases," Waller said. "We handle 5,000 felony cases a year, 10,000 misdemeanor cases. By virtue of the case load, you can't take 5,000 cases to trial every year."

Like Jacobs, Waller would work to establish a specialized unit in the state's attorney's office to deal with elder abuse. If re-elected, he also would oversee the completion of the Integrated Justice Information systems project, electronically linking all criminal justice agencies in Lake County.

He noted projects he has completed during his tenure. He started three county-wide coalitions that deal with issues in domestic violence, juvenile justice and criminal justice at large that have blossomed into programs for teenagers. NICASA, a premier alcohol and drug treatment program in Lake County, has been recognized state-wide and nationally while under Waller's supervision, as well.

"For 18 years, I haven't been sitting here watching the leaves blow by," he said.

The puck stops here

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

Don't try to tell these kids that hockey lacks the following of some of the country's more popular sports.

They are probably skating too fast to hear you anyway.

"[Hockey's] just fun. It's more of a head rush," said Andrew Williams, 18, of Grayslake.

Williams and 24 other high school students from across Lake County are members of the Ramquoits Hockey Club. The team name is a combination of the mascot names from the Grayslake Central High School Rams and the Antioch Community High School Sequoits.

Formed six years ago, the team has grown to include players from Lakes Community High School, Grayslake North High School, Grant Community High School and Waukegan High School.

Team president Julie Burchard said bringing kids together from high schools that compete against each other in other sports is not a difficult task.

"They learn to play as a team. It's not an independent sport," Burchard said. "They play because they're passionate about the game."

Since many area high schools do not find enough interest among student bodies to field their own hockey teams, the Ramquoits were formed.

The team provides local high school students with a chance to compete, said team vice president Ivan Berg. The Ramquoits compete in the Metro Central division of the Amateur Hockey Association of Illinois.

"They want to let the kids that can play, play," Berg said of the league. "It's an outlet for these kids to be able to do good things. What would these kids be doing if they weren't here four nights a week?"

Ramquoit Hockey Club member Brad Drogos from Grayslake Central High School gets congratulated by Ross Houselander from Antioch High School after scoring in the team's game on Oct. 19.

Varsity head coach Jim Meyer said the practice time players have to commit to hockey is one aspect that might deter interest in the sport. Skating, Meyer said, is not a natural movement and requires time to learn.

"I think a lot of it has to do with the time commitment and the skills involved," Meyer said. "These kids are on the ice three or four times a week."

Meyer said that lately he has noticed a resurgence of interest in the sport, however, particularly among youth. In addition to the discipline and time management kids learn from hockey, he said, playing in the league provides extra motivation to do well in school.

"One of our rules is if your grades fall you don't play," Meyer said.

Although the Ramquoits is comprised of nearly all boys, the team does boast one girl, Ariel Pontikes, 17, of Lake Villa, said she has watched hockey her whole life and is not intimidated by the prospect of playing against boys.

"It's different. I'm pretty much one of the guys," Pontikes said.

She said playing alongside kids from other high schools is not a problem for the team. "You can meet people from other schools and have different groups of friends," she said.

Williams said he prefers to play defense, even though it limits his opportunities to score.

"I have more fun stopping a play than actually scoring," Williams said.

It may not have been intended, but hockey has received more attention than usual in recent weeks thanks to vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin's stake as a "hockey mom."

Burchard said many of her friends thought of her when Palin began talking about life as a hockey mom.

Palin's interest in the sport did not seem to surprise Burchard.

"[Palin] has a passion for hockey. How can you not?" she said.

Republican to face challenger in 61st

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com

Less than two weeks out from election day, the race in Illinois' 61st district is heating up.

Incumbent Republican JoAnn Osmond, who has represented the district since 2002, said that the state's growing budget deficit is preventing legislators from addressing other issues. She is facing Democrat Jim Parks on Nov. 4.

"When your budget is so out of whack, it's hard to do anything," Osmond said. "I'm not an accountant, but I have a checkbook. And I know you can't write checks for money you don't have."

Osmond said that while in office she has never voted for a tax increase and believes property taxes in the district are hurting citizens, particularly those on fixed incomes.

"Property tax relief is a huge thing. Seniors are getting pushed out of their homes because of taxes," Osmond said.

One source of new jobs, Osmond said, is the Zion nuclear power plant, which has been closed for 10 years. Osmond said the state should move toward either re-starting or decommissioning the plant. Both options, Osmond said, would be good sources of jobs.

For candidate bios and additional election information, visit LakeCountyJournals.com.

Parks agreed that bringing business to the state is critical. It is an area where, he believes, Osmond has not done enough. Parks said he would appeal directly to business executives.

"We need someone who is capable and comfortable in telling these captains of industry why they should come to Lake County," Parks said. "Whatever we need to do to get [businesses], we'll get them."

A self-described "fiscal conservative," Parks said the state has three choices for addressing the current budget shortfall. Illinois can either lease the state lottery, raise taxes or build casinos, he said. While none of the options are appealing, Parks said, building casinos is the most viable choice.

"Of the three bad options, this is the least bad," Parks said. "In the short term, it's a quick avenue to a lot of money." If Illinois does not build casinos, he said, Wisconsin is likely to do so in Kenosha.

Osmond said she believes Parks will have difficulty accomplishing his proposals and will be "attached" to Speaker Michael Madigan.

Both Parks and Osmond said they are opposed to a constitutional convention citing costs and the ability to amend the constitution through other means. Both candidates said they support giving citizens the opportunity to recall elected officials in the state.

Sci-fi series produced locally

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnnewsgroup.com

LINDENHURST – Lindenhurst may be a long way from Hollywood, but one area resident is not letting that stop him from producing his own movie magic.

William Fraser is the writer and producer of an Internet science fiction series entitled "Artifact." Although such an undertaking used to be only a possibility for full-time directors, the Lindenhurst resident is able to use technology to his advantage in making his production a reality.

"Equipment is so relatively inexpensive right now," Fraser said. "Even if you don't have anything expensive, you can do anything now."

"I wrote [the script for 'Artifact'] specifically with keeping costs down in mind."

Fraser currently has three episodes of his Internet series available on his Web site, www.whatistheartifact.com. He said he would ultimately like to make 20 to 25 episodes.

Set five years in the future, the series takes place in a world devastated by the effects of a mysterious virus that wipes out 80 percent of the world's population, Fraser said.

Although the survivors of the virus do what they can to find the cause, the only person with the answer was killed when the virus began to spread.

All the survivors know about the virus, Fraser said, is that the secret to its prevention is somehow related to a mysterious artifact, hence the title of the series. Even though the series is not near completion, Fraser said the ending is not a mystery to him.

"I know exactly how it ends," he said. "You have to be flexible in some respects, but I definitely wanted to have a goal to work toward."

Up until now, all episodes have been filmed in Maine. But filming future episodes in Lindenhurst is a possibility, Fraser said.

"I would like to start filming in both [Lindenhurst and Maine]," he said. "The sixth or seventh episode is written to definitely be filmed in the Lindenhurst area."

A long time fan of science fiction, Fraser said he is open to the possibility of taking "Artifact" beyond the Internet.

"I think it's definitely something that could be transformed to television," he said. "I would love for someone like the Sci Fi Channel to pick it up."

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and military customs and courtesies, performed drill and ceremony marches, and received physical training, rifle marksmanship, field training exercises, and special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Wrestling clinic planned for students

LAKE VILLA – Lakes Community High School wrestling coaches will host a free wrestling clinic for area grade school students (from grade 3 to grade 8) who are interested in wrestling. The clinic will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. on Nov. 5 and 6 in the LCHS wrestling room by the gymnasiums.

This clinic is designed to introduce and enhance knowledge in the sport. Basic wrestling skills will be emphasized.

Organizers ask that residents sign up early so they can have an accurate count of wrestlers in the room and have good wrestler to instructor ratios. Call Curt Onstad at 847-838-8013 to learn more.

Foundation to host 5K run and walk

LAKE VILLA – The Katie Memorial Foundation will host the KMF Fun Run and Walk on Saturday, Oct. 25.

A variety of fun, family-oriented activities will highlight the day's event. The Sun Lake Forest Preserve's main walking path makes up the heart of the 5K course.

Participants may choose to stroll the course with friends, family and neighbors, hit the ground running with a front group of racers or both. A mile-long kid's race will start at 9:05 a.m. followed directly by the start of the 5K run and walk events. The general entry fee is $20 a person for adults and $10 for children.

All race participants will receive a KMF T-shirt and a KMF bandanna. Registration is available online at the KMF Web site, www.katiememorialfoundation.org, or participants can register the day of the event. For more information, call 312-339-5115.

Energy efficiency

To the Editor:

As our nation is faced with increasingly urgent matters that require wise decisions by Congress for their resolution, the coming election takes on an unusual level of importance.

Congressional foolishness, that has resulted in our financial crisis, needs to be addressed by us voters.

The financial crisis dominates the news, but the cost of energy – notably gasoline – has not been resolved. When it returns to the stage, we need Congress to act in our best interests.

We are spending unreported millions researching and subsidizing alternative energy.

We have at least one national laboratory dedicated to this research. One thing is clear: alternatives to fossil fuel are

a) more expensive; b) less convenient; or c) both.

Let's continue to research the alternatives at the present level of spending, while we remove the legal barriers to development of petroleum reserves.

We won't get wisdom from Democrats in Congress, so let's replace them, starting here in Illinois' 8th District.

Please join me in voting for Steve Greenberg for Congress.

'Yes' for fire district

To the Editor:

On Nov. 4, the Grayslake Fire District will ask voters for a tax increase to adequately protect the more than 30,000 residents in its 24-square-mile area. Currently, response times to the southern portion of their district are around 12 minutes.

This time increases dramatically if Station No. 1 is busy on an emergency call. In this situation, the nearest vehicle responds from the station near the College of Lake County.

In the time it takes to arrive, the chances of survival for victims of heart attacks or strokes is drastically decreased. Fires have also grown more than 64 times their original size. We cannot ignore the lack of adequate protection for residents.

The fire district has cut costs and extended service life of vehicles by implementing every available cost-saving option. The hope was to collect the extra revenue from the large commercial properties in development.

Unfortunately, we have seen these projects stall in the last year and revenue cannot support additional staff or equipment. The fire district has run out of options and must ask voters for an increase.

This increase would staff a fire station in the southern part of the district and replace old equipment.

Another fire station also would back up other crews throughout the district.

Asking for money was not a decision that was made lightly, but lives now depend on it.

Please support the Grayslake Fire Protection District.

Lake County Forest Preserves Referendum Information

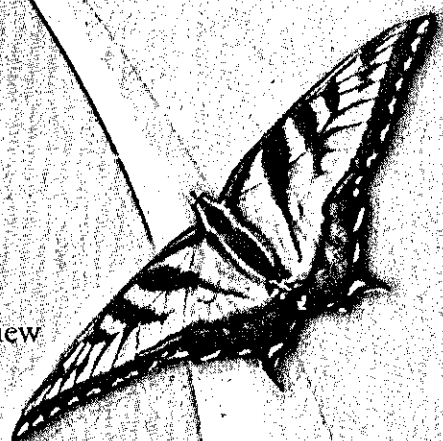

The November ballot includes a Forest Preserve Referendum.

No tax rate increase.

The referendum will provide $185 million to save more open space, create new trails, restore wildlife habitats and improve preserves — all WITHOUT a tax rate increase.

With approval, $185 million of future bonds would replace older bonds that are being paid off in the coming year. Your tax rate will stay the same because the older bonds are being retired.

Without approval, Forest Preserve property taxes would decrease by up to $24 per $200,000 market value beginning in 2009 when the older bonds retire. However, without approval, purchase of new Forest Preserve lands would stop.

Why now?

The Forest Preserve will have used all of its land acquisition funds by the end of 2008. Replacing older bonds that are about to expire provides continued funding for land purchases and preserve improvements WITHOUT increasing taxes.

Also, lower land prices and favorable interest rates make this an opportune time to replace the older bonds and protect more open space.

A call for change

To the Editor:
I want the residents of Lake County Board District 1 to know that two weeks ago I asked my opponent in this race to debate issues that affect us in these troubled times.

She responded by saying her schedule would not allow her to take the time to debate me.

I am shocked that any candidate running for public office could not find the time to discuss issues that are so important to our residents.

I have spoken with thousands of residents in our community, and I can tell you that people are worried about the direction of our country and our local government.

They are especially concerned about skyrocketing property taxes.

I am the only candidate in this race who has a comprehensive plan to address the property tax issue.

If elected, I will call for an audit and an overhaul of assessments in Lake County.

The whole system seems backward.

We need to give our seniors and all homeowners in the county a break.

The first thing I will do, if I am elected, is to call the chief county assessor to the carpet and make him do his job!

I do not accept the excuse that the township assessors are elected officials and that there is nothing that we can do about assessments that continue to rise while home values fall.

If the chief county assessor will not do his job, then I want a new county assessor that will fairly represent residents.

I cannot stand by while the county board sits on its hands and does nothing.

I cannot stand by while hardworking residents are suffering.

Now is the time to change the way that we do business in District 1.

Peter Grant
Antioch Township

Keep taxes low

To the Editor,
Like many taxpayers here in Lake County, I am looking forward to Election Day, when I can express my opinion on rising property and sales taxes.

I have had it with politicians spending money that the government doesn't have and feeling they can go back to the people for more in the form of added taxes.

I plan to vote for Dan Duffy for state Senate because I believe he will best represent my interests in Springfield.

Dan was an outspoken critic of Gov. Blagojevich's gross receipts tax, and I believe he will fight attempts to raise our property taxes.

As a small business owner and a husband and father who is raising his family here, I believe Dan Duffy understands the issues facing all of us, maintaining a high quality of life, giving our children the best education while keeping taxes in check.

On Nov. 4, I am supporting Dan Duffy for Illinois Senate

Bill Dunnam
Barrington

Tougher penalties needed

To the Editor:
Is it better to sit and curse

the darkness, or to light a candle? In Washington, these days, far too many politicians curse the darkness that is corruption. Of course, they all deplore what Ted Stevens, Dan Rostenkowski and William Jefferson did – but that is all they do. That's cursing the darkness.

U.S. Rep. Mark Kirk is different. Rather than rage against corruption – he fights to eradicate it. That's lighting a candle.

After the Duke Cunningham and Bob Ney scandals, Mark Kirk was one of the first to introduce tough new ethics rules to discourage and punish Congressional corruption.

Rep. Kirk's bill would have stripped pensions from Congressmen convicted of a wide range of public integrity felonies – such as bribery, lying to federal authorities and income tax evasion.

Congress chose to derail Kirk's bill – instead settling on a weaker, less comprehensive version.

Because of Congress' refusal to match Mark Kirk's tough stance against corruption, Alaska Sen. Ted Stevens likely will be able to keep his pension – even if convicted.

Congressman Kirk has resubmitted his bill – I hope that this time, Congress will listen.

Politicians who take bribes or otherwise abuse their office betray the public trust.

It's that simple.

I support Mark Kirk for Congress because he knows that to stop corruption – we must do more than discuss our outrage ... we must legislate against it and punish those who abuse the privilege of their office.

I urge Congress to pass Mark

Kirk's legislation immediately – and we need to re-elect Congressman Mark Kirk to represent us in Washington.

In the Latest Chill for Homeowners, Banks Are Freezing Lines of Credit

By Amy Hoak

When Denise Lopez bought two new tables, a floor lamp and a chair, she financed it with her home-equity line of credit. But it wasn't long before an option: Her line of credit had been frozen.

The purchases for her West Palm Beach, Fla., condo were made on card, and she then wrote a check against her line of credit to cover

National City offers cash to cut equity lines

By Saskia Scholtes in New York

National City, the US bank that has been among the hardest hit by the subprime crisis, is trying to reduce its exposure to the riskiest category of home loans by offering customers cash to close their untapped home equity lines.

If the scheme is successful, analysts say other banks could follow suit, choosing to spend money now to avoid taking more exposure to the US housing slump.

With Us It's A Different Story.

Some trends we just don't follow.

Now-you-see-it, now-you-don't home equity lines may be the latest trend at some of the big banks in town, but not at our bank.

When you open a home equity line of credit with us you can rest assured that your line of credit won't be frozen or mysteriously reduced. We work with you to make sure applying for or transferring your loan is easy. All of our decision makers are local, so your loan request will be handled quickly and efficiently - without headaches and hidden fees you might find elsewhere. Plus, you'll receive an exceptional rate and service that can only be provided from Central Lake County's Leading bank group. So if you're looking for a bank you can count on — look no further.

1. The Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is variable based on the most recent Prime Rate that is available to us as of the first day of the month and the amount of the commitment. The APR is based on the highest Prime Rate published in the Money Rates section of the Wall Street Journal (WSJ) Prime. Based on the 1001.08 Prime Rate of 5.00%, standard rates range between 4.50% APR and 5.25% APR depending on the amount of the commitment. The APR can change on the first day of each month. Minimum amount for a home equity line of credit is $10,000. The maximum APR is 4.50%. Consult a tax advisor regarding the deductibility of interest. Property insurance for property securing loan is required. Fixed Rate plans may also be available. An increase in the prime rate may increase the APR and/or increase the amount of your payment. Your minimum payment amount will equal the amount of accrued finance charges. If you do not make minimum payments, you will not fully repay the principal; you will then be required to pay the entire balance in a single lump-sum payment at maturity. Offer applies to lines secured by owner-occupied 1-to-4 family residences located in the state of Illinois that are part of a purchase transaction. An Early Termination Fee of $500 will be charged if you close the line within one year from its opening. Subject to credit approval. Normal underwriting guidelines apply. Rates are subject to change without notice. 2. This reflects a preferred rate from standard variable rates. We will reduce your home equity line APR by .25% subject to rate increases. Your home equity line payments are deducted from your Libertyville Bank & Trust checking account via a monthly automatic payment deduction arrangement. As of 10/1/08, the APR for preferred rates range from 4.25% through 5.00% depending on the amount of the commitment. The APR reduction will be eliminated for a payment arrangement is terminated. Contact bank for qualifying checking accounts. This rate reduction does not apply to a Fixed Rate Repayment Plan. The preferred rate of Prime + .75% APR assumes a commitment amount of $100,000 through $1,000,000 and participation in a monthly automatic payment deduction arrangement with a Libertyville Bank & Trust checking account as described here. As of 10/1/08, if you select a Fixed Rate Repayment Plan, the Total Line of Credit must be selected during the first nine years of your term with a minimum annual payment of $1,000. Repayment is a must not continue beyond the maturity date of the Total Line of Credit. No more than five Fixed Rate Repayment Plans may be open at one time. The Fixed Rate will be based on the Fixed Rate Index (FRI) plus a margin rounded to the nearest 0.25% as of the first business day of the month in which the plan is established. The FRI is the weekly average yield on U.S. Treasury securities adjusted to a constant maturity of 5 years for repayment terms of 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 years, and the margin is 3.00% for a fully amortized Fixed Rate Repayment Plan and the margin is 3.25% for a 15 year amortization Fixed Rate Repayment Plan with a balloon payment. Based on FRI for the week ending 9/25/08, these Fixed Rate Repayment Plan APR rates will range from 5.00% through 7.35%. A Fixed Rate Repayment Plan may be charged an Early Cancellation Fee of $250 (plus applicable Fixed Rate Repayment Plan with 12 months of its position). 3. Visa® Gift Card are able to be used after 90 days to receive period has expired. At least $100.00 is drawn on the first day after the 90-day period expires. Maximum of one Gift Card per credit line opened. This offer may change or be withdrawn at any time. Not available for lines of credit used for purchase money or first mortgage refinancing transactions. © 2008 Libertyville Bank & Trust.

Sensitive Teeth

There are so many things that may cause sensitive teeth that it is impossible for a non-professional without proper equipment to make a competent diagnosis. Here is a list of just a few possibilities.

Abrasion or attrition – Decay – Erosion – Fractured enamel – Loose or broken fillings – Loose teeth – Thermal changes – Traumatic occlusion – Root exposure – Rough edges – Oral lesions.

This list doesn't begin to cover it all. It doesn't include gum problems, supporting bone problems, nerve inflammation, muscle tension – and a host of medical conditions that are not local at all.

When your teeth are sensitive or in pain. When you see accumulations of tartar on your teeth. When your gums bleed easily. When you have a lingering, bad taste in your mouth. When you notice that your breath is not as fresh and sweet as it should be – see your dentist. The resolution of the problem could be quite easily accomplished and you will be comfortable and confident again.

Voter signups concern clerk

Nearly 900 registrations found to have 'irregularities'

By COLIN SELBO

cselbo@nwnewsgroup.com
and STEPHANIE LEHMAN
slehman@nwnewsgroup.com

Lake County Clerk Willard Helander expressed concern about the high volume of irregularities in voter registration applications recently received by her office. "The integrity of an election could well be compromised," Helander said. "In an election cycle where a Lake County candidate would win or lose by one or two votes, this is really scary."

The problem lies with a mail-in voter registration system that is "seriously flawed," Helander said.

"Because [mail-in registration] has so many opportunities for misdeeds, there are a number of people taking advantage of [the system]," Helander said.

Helander said she has passed faulty applications on to the Lake County Sheriff's Office, as well as state and federal authorities for further investigation.

Todd Govain, supervisor of voter registration, said he began to notice in mid-August addresses on some applications that did not exist in Lake County.

"They came in and I noticed, just looking at the addresses, that, hmmm, these addresses look funny," he said.

The clerk's office has documented 892 applications with faulty addresses. The office also found applications with multiple signatures that appeared to be signed by the same person and applications sent to deceased county residents, as well as applications for household pets.

Several residents returned faulty applications.

"Our system does not provide safeguards to protect the voters," Helander said. "[Voters] deserve to know the quality of voter registration efforts."

Helander called several counties to make them aware of the problems in Lake County.

"We have not had any problems like that," said McHenry County Clerk, Katherine Schultz, who said she was contacted by Willard in September. "When I was talking to her, I was afraid we were going to see the same things."

But, Schultz said, McHenry County is smaller than Lake County, and farther from Chicago — two factors she said might have played a role in the mail-in irregularities in Lake County.

Adam Fogel of FairVote, a nonpartisan right-to-vote organization, said voter registration deadlines immediately before elections place burdens on counties.

"The system itself, just in terms of voter registration, is seriously flawed," Fogel said. "The problem nationally is that county clerks are underfunded, understaffed and overworked."

Helander said concerns come down to ensuring that only legitimate voters are casting ballots.

If residents believe they have received a ballot for a falsely registered voter, they should call the county clerk's office at 847-377-2410 or e-mail countyclerk@co.lake.il.us.

Vote no on changing the Illinois constitution

On Nov. 4, you will be called upon to decide who you believe is best suited to lead the country as president.

Besides voting for other national and local offices, you will be called upon to decide whether Illinois should create a new constitution. It is an issue that can't be taken lightly.

When Illinois adopted the 1970 constitution, there was written a provision that every 20 years voters shall be given the opportunity to declare whether they want to assemble a constitutional convention to rewrite the document.

Twenty years ago, voters decided against calling for such a convention.

It takes three-fifths of those voting on the question or a majority of those voting in the election to call a constitutional convention (con-con). If the vote is successful, then an election is held to elect delegates to serve at the convention. Any final decision by the convention must be ratified or rejected by the voters of Illinois.

Times are different in Illinois. The political stalemate in the legislature, the lack of any bipartisan cooperation to reach budgetary consensus, and continued pay-to-play political abuse all have led voters to be fed up with the state government. That frustration is turning many to believe that things are so unworkable in Springfield that changing the constitution is the only hope for reform.

I share the frustration of the public but I believe strongly that the mess in Springfield is not the constitution, and changing the state's charter could lead to more problems for citizens.

We must understand that a constitution is a basic charter putting forth the system by which a state governs. It protects the rights of individuals and limits the government.

What I fear from a constitution is that delegates will debate many issues as if the con-con were a legislative body.

If you believe that a new constitution is the answer to the mess in Springfield, believe me, it isn't.

Dancing with the scars

I was born with the grace of a lumbering moose. That had to be the reason my mother enrolled me, at 6, in interpretive dancing, meaning I participated in a class where I danced any way I desired. It also meant Mother paid a fortune to foster the silly notion that this was a creative endeavor.

To give my mother credit, this performance art was thought to be avant-garde years ago.

Just as a point of reference, our recital consisted of eight little girls in sarongs and one unfortunate boy in a loin cloth, all cavorting across the stage, twirling, somersaulting, or leaping to Khachaturian's "Sabre Dance."

When I turned 8, I'd done all I could do, interpretive-dancing-wise, and begged for ballet lessons. My mother, too gracious to say I couldn't tell my left foot from my right, enrolled me in Miss Petite's School of Dance. Miss Petite, not at all gracious, told my mother I'd auditioned like a marionette gone mad. She added that I'd have to begin in the 4-year-olds' class. I looked like a giant weed towering over a row of tiny petunias.

"First position," Miss Petite would chirp. Ten little 4-year-olds would turn their feet outward. I would place one foot in front of the other (and when I didn't fall over), Miss Petite would say, "Judi, that's Fourth Position." When I did fall over, she'd mutter words we shouldn't have heard.

At 12, I undertook my first attempt at pirouetting, but trying to accomplish a rapid whirl on the full turn of my toe caused me to throw up on Miss Petite's shiny wooden studio floor. I was banned from returning. Ever.

As a teen, during the rock and roll years, twirling and jumping were in. Still, my dancing looked like someone had stuffed a gerbil down my sweater-sleeve and I was trying to shake the creature out.

In my early 20s, I'd twist and shout with my kids, who were then little, but as they grew older, they pleaded with me not to dance in front of them, or anyone.

My husband, a decent dancer, had always offered to sit out dances at weddings, saying he needed the rest. Then came the first wedding of our offspring, and I enrolled us in "Beginning Ballroom."

"At lesson one, the instructor glared at me. 'Why is he doing that?' I asked my husband, who was not being glared upon.

"Because you're looking at your feet," he said.

"I have to," I said.

"We're doing a box step," my husband argued. "Surely, you can imagine making a square without looking down."

I couldn't.

We dropped out. My husband said I should just put my feet on top of his to practice. I did, but in doing so, I broke the big toe on his right foot. He's a good man, but I couldn't help overhearing his words as that toe fractured.

"Damn lumbering moose woman," he said.

Isn't she lovely?

Are today's little princesses having fun or getting the wrong idea?

By JAMI KUNZER • jkunzer@nwnewsgroup.com

Little girls everywhere will be adding a "Bibbidi-Bobbidi" to their "Boo" this Halloween.

Princesses so far are continuing their reign as the No. 1 children's costume, according to the National Retail Foundation.

But, as parents of young girls know well, the costumes aren't just popular once a year.

Princess mania seems to have taken over.

Just about anything geared toward children these days — clothing, toys, furniture, books and more — can be found with a Disney princess emblazoned on them.

Princess-themed parties and venues, television shows, movies and plays are everywhere.

It's definitely a phenomenon, but perhaps not as new as some might think. Children always have played dress-up.

Instead of a blanket clothes-pinned on the back or Mom's old dress, they now wear royal gowns and tutus chosen from entire aisles filled with princess attire.

"Times haven't changed, but these days, the toy companies have found ways to make 'pretend' profitable," said Mary Fosnow of McHenry, who worked as a home daycare provider when her now-teenage children were younger.

She had a toy box filled with dress-up clothes. She encouraged the imaginary play and remembers wearing a "royal" cape and a crown made out of cardboard and tinfoil as a child.

"That's a gift of childhood, the freedom to simply play," she said. "I'm sure that the little girl walking around in her robes and jewels and crown knows she's not a real princess, but it's just so much fun to pretend to be one."

A 'well-rounded' princess

Imaginary play is healthy, child development experts say, as long as the princess image isn't taken too far.

Concerned parents should take a look at books, such as "So Sexy So Soon: The New Sexualized Childhood and What Parents Can do to Protect Their Kids" and "Frogs, Snails, and Feminist Tales," recommended Samara Madrid, an assistant professor of Early Childhood Education at Northern Illinois University.

The books offer a feminist and critical perspective about how young females can be socialized into roles that focus on male approval, beauty as self-worth and the notion of "happily ever after," she said.

For kids, the stories "Do Princesses Wear Hiking Boots?" by Carmela LaVigna Coyle and "The Paperbag Princess" by Robert N. Munsch, challenge the traditional princess image.

It comes down to how parents talk to their children, said Shira Greenfield, a licensed clinical professional counselor for Centegra Health System in McHenry.

"It becomes more harmful when being a princess is only about being pretty to the exclusion of any other characteristics, being smart or kind or funny," she said. "When they want to be a princess because princesses are pretty, you're setting girls up for some image issues."

Instead, encourage a "well-rounded" princess, she said. Tell them, "You can be nice and kind and smart as a nurse or a housekeeper or a princess," she suggested. "If a princess is just rich and pretty, that's a shallow goal."

Once upon a time

Disney began marketing the princess costumes in 1999 when an executive noticed at a Disney on Ice show the number of girls dressed in generic costumes.

They realized dressing up like a Disney princess is a phase many girls go through, said Kathy Franklin, vice president of Global Franchise Development-Girls for Disney Consumer Products.

"The primary benefit is they just love it," she said. "They enjoy themselves immensely. And our research shows that moms understand the Disney characters have a lot of positive attributes — kindness, compassion and caring about each other."

Disney sends the message in its stories that a "true princess" is beautiful both inside and out, she said.

Madeline Becker of Crystal Lake, a mom of six, including two girls ages 9 and 6, doesn't worry about the "pretty" princess image.

"Right now, I think it's just a time to enjoy," she said. "I think you can address those things later when they can understand what you're getting at."

Other moms, such as Lorri Kunz of Marengo, never had to worry about it. Her daughter, now 15, wanted to be more like her older brother.

"I never pursued it. She didn't want it, and that's fine with me," she said.

"It's a little bit too much focus on how beautiful they are, and how thin and ultimately, they're successful because they're rich in the end and they find a good prince."

Kristen Esch of Batavia, whose daughter Lexi, now 11, went through a princess phase at age 3, also worried about the message sent.

Parents can go overboard, she said, feeding into the suggestion that girls should be pretty and popular, that glitter spray will make a young girl stand out more at Halloween.

Girls should learn the difference between imaginary and "real women, real looks and real expectations," she said.

"The magazine wants them to look a certain way to be accepted," she'd tell her daughter. "Isn't that horrible?"

There's nothing wrong with little girls dressing as princesses as long as parents also teach them values, said Joni Downey, a mom of three who runs a McHenry-based "Characters of Character" program for preschoolers.

"I am a firm believer that children should stay young for a long time, let them dream, let them use their imaginations and mostly let them be little for awhile," she said.

Change needed in 'Changeling'

Despite Oscar talk, dramatic movie comes off as dull, repetitive

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
jeffreywesthoff@jeffwest.com

Movies that exist to win Oscars seldom advertise that fact as boldly as Clint Eastwood's "Changeling."

The movie ends on the night of the 1935 Academy Awards. In what we now call the office Oscar pool, Angelina Jolie's character, Christine Collins, places her bet on "It Happened One Night." As the credits roll, Jolie walks past a theater with that multiple Oscar winner on the marquee, as if invoking the spirits of Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert and Frank Capra to bolster "Changeling's" Oscar chances.

Those chances, admittedly, are strong. Anything Eastwood directs these days is an automatic Oscar contender. Moreover, "Changeling" is a period film based on a true story. And Jolie plays an aggrieved mother unjustly sent to a mental ward. "Changeling" should garner plenty of nominations. So what if it doesn't deserve them?

Eastwood's direction is often called sturdy, painstaking and meticulous. Those can all be nice ways of saying "boring," and "Changeling" becomes boring because Eastwood is stuck with J. Michael Straczynski's long, unfocused and poorly structured script. Most of the drama takes place in 1928 Los Angeles. Christine Collins returns home from her job at the phone company to discover her son, Walter (Gatlin Griffith), is missing.

She calls the police, but gets little help until five months later when Capt. J.J. Jones (Jeffrey Donovan) tells her Walter has been found in a diner in DeKalb, Ill.

The mother and child reunion doesn't live up to the LAPD's dreams of good press. A boy (Devon Conti) claiming to be Walter steps off the train. "This is not my son," Christine says instantly. Jones refuses to listen. "You're in shock, and he's lost weight. Why don't you take him home on a trial basis?"

Intimidated by Jones, whose only expression is a snarl, Christine does take the boy home. But as she continues to dispute the boy's identity, the police department turns against her, eventually sticking her in a psychotic ward to make her disappear. The Rev. Gustav Briegleb (John Malkovich), a radio minister who long has railed against LAPD corruption, takes up Christine's cause.

Meanwhile, Detective Lester Ybarra (Michael Kelly) unearths a crime on a desert ranch that unfortunately relates directly to Christine's story. This crime, which the film depicts accurately, is so horrific it's a wonder the story isn't as well known as the Manson murders. Apparently it took television to ingrain particular serial killers and mass murderers into the culture.

How could a film with so much turmoil, drama and pulp elements become boring? Because it contains too much of all of the above.

Once Ybarra arrives at the ranch, "Changeling" splits into two movies.

One is about an innocent woman victimized because she challenges the system, the other about a heroic cop investigating a monstrous crime. Half the time it's "Silkwood," the other half it's "In Cold Blood." The stories do connect, but awkwardly, as "Changeling" morphs into two simultaneous courtroom dramas and their aftermaths.

The underlying flaw to Straczynski's script is that he fails to nail down the central conflict.

Is it Christine vs. the LAPD?

Christine vs. the whole system?

Christine vs. the rampant sexism of her era?

Christine vs. a world that would take her son away?

Because Straczynski doesn't know the essential story he's telling, he doesn't know how to end it. The final half hour is a string of attempted endings. The scene that takes place on Oscar night 1935 is either the sixth or seventh ending, or a postscript to a postscript.

Malkovich gives one of his best performances in years, but his role is surprisingly small.

Playing a mother whose son goes missing a year after she played a wife whose husband goes missing (in "A Mighty Heart"), Jolie clearly is gunning for a best actress Oscar. Her performances are fine, but Jolie always goes a scene too far to prove she's acting.

Preserving open space

WAUCONDA – The Liberty Prairie Conservancy is hosting its final presentation of the year for Lake County landowners interested in preserving the rural character of their properties and receiving tax benefits for doing so. The program, free and open to the public, is from 10 to 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 25, at Wauconda Public Library, 801 N. Main St., in Wauconda.

The program provides details on conservation easements and the new tax benefits in place for them that expire at the end of 2009. A conservation easement is a voluntary agreement between a landowner and a qualified organization that restricts activities on property in order to protect its conservation values. Restrictions are binding and perpetual, staying with the land even as it changes ownership over time. This presentation will be particularly useful to owners of at least 10 acres.

The Liberty Prairie Conservancy is a nonprofit organization that preserves wildlife habitat, farmland and other open space throughout Lake County. For more information, visit www.libertyprairie.org.

Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers Opens In Grayslake

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

For the past two years Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers has been satisfying hearty appetites in the Waukegan area. Now Jack's is offering the same generous portions and extensive menu at its second location on Center Street just off Route 83 in Grayslake.

Although the Grayslake restaurant has only been open four weeks, customers are already tuning into regulars. Betsy Poggen of Grayslake said she has eaten there a few times because of the wide variety of meals. She also likes the vegetarian selections and the fact that free soup is offered with meals. Her kids enjoy watching sports on the two wide screen televisions.

The restaurant itself is bright and cheery with a patriotic red, white, and blue color scheme and walls of windows to let in sunshine. "I like to make everyone feel at home," said co-owner Anna Papandreou. With seating for about 120, Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers has ample room for large parties.

Service was fast and friendly when I ordered a hamburger and shake from the counter up front. The burger was huge, hot, and juicy, and the shake was thick enough to almost require a spoon. The complimentary soup was homemade. And the price was reasonable.

It was hard to choose among the many appetizing selections on the menu. There are all types of appetizers, salads, sandwiches, hot dogs, burgers, full dinners such as broasted chicken with French fries and salad, gyros, submarines, Italian specialties like chicken parmesan, a Mexican menu, seafood, paninis, and, of course, a long list of specialty pizzas. You can also cap off your meal with tempting desserts like cheesecake or tiramisu.

Elias Papandreou, son of owners Anna and Louie Papandreou, said that both restaurants are family run. He said the restaurants are named after his brother Jack, who is also involved in the business. Elias noted that his parents have been in the restaurant business for over 25 years.

Elias felt the key to their success was that "people can come here and get whatever they feel like at a reasonable price." Anna said, "you can feed a whole family for about $10.00 by ordering our pizza special and pop." She added that since they offer carry out and delivery, "the whole restaurant menu is available to go."

Elias also said they offer catering, and have a catering vehicle with an oven and cooler to keep food at the right temperature.

Based on the current success of Jack's Pizzeria and Burgers, Elias says they may be adding more locations in the future. Just remember, whatever location you visit, come prepared with a hearty appetite.

National Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in women in the United States and is the second leading cause of cancer death in women. Currently, there are over 2 million women living in the United States who have been treated for breast cancer.

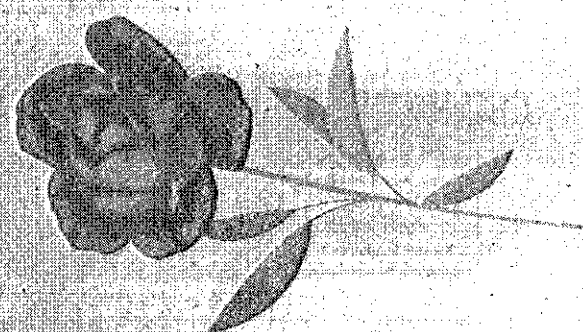

Early detection is key to saving lives when it comes to breast cancer, so women should protect themselves by practicing regular self-exams, scheduling annual mammograms and learning the facts and treatment options.
